REACHING OUT
Domestic abuse
support in rural areas
We can help you

Are you living in a rural area and experiencing domestic abuse?

We can help you.

You're not alone.

Many people experience violence within a relationship. It happens in all communities, in all neighbourhoods, on every street.

You do not have to put up with it.

We can help you

- If you are at risk of harm from a partner, ex-partner or family member
- If you want to remain at home safely and remove your abusive partner
- If you want to stay at home but are not ready to leave your abusive partner
- If you feel unsafe at home and need to go into safe accommodation
- If you are not sure what you want to do and want to talk to someone about your situation

What we can offer

- A specialist Rural Domestic Abuse Worker to help and support you
- Someone to talk things over with
- Helping you with your and your families safety and creating a safety plan
- Supporting you to make your home safe
- Help you to go to court and get legal protection
- Support with housing and finances
- Support with parenting and help for your children
- Help with accessing Counselling
- Help to feel safe and rebuild your life
- We can also support you if you wish to report abuse to the police

Who will support me?

A specialist rural domestic abuse support worker is specially trained to support victims and survivors of domestic abuse.

We can help you to be safe and live free from domestic violence and abuse.

We will listen to you and work with you to ensure that you choose the support and help you want going forward.
